

Gleim Instrument Pilot ACS & Oral Exam Guide

Second Edition, Third Printing

Updates

December 2022

NOTE: Sections with changes are indicated by a vertical bar in the left margin. Text that should be deleted is displayed with a line through it. New text is shown with blue underlined font.

If you are tested on any content not represented in our materials or this update, please share this information with Gleim so we can continue to provide the most complete test preparation experience possible. You can submit feedback at www.GleimAviation.com/questions. Thank you in advance for your help!

Oral Exam Guide, Part II: Airman Certification Standards (ACS) Tasks

Area of Operation I: Preflight Preparation

Page 107, Task A, Pilot Qualifications, Questions 18 and 19: This update clarifies the answers and improves the material regarding proficiency, currency, and recency.

18.	Can time in a flight simulator or flight training device be recorded in your logbook and counted towards your instrument proficiency training ?	If To log time toward acquiring instrument aeronautical experience for a pilot certificate or instrument rating, an authorized instructor is must be present during the to observe that time when the a full flight simulator or flight training device, or aviation training device is being used, the time can be logged and counted toward instrument proficiency. The instructor will sign the learner's logbook or training record for verification.
19.	Can you log instrument time in your logbook based on simulator flight time you obtained when acting alone?	No To log time toward an instrument rating, an authorized instructor must be present in order to log flight simulator time or flight training device, or aviation training device time as instrument time. However, when logging simulator time for the purpose of satisfying instrument recency experience requirements, an individual may log simulator time when acting alone, provided a logbook is maintained to specify the training device, the time, and the content.